

Guidelines for Working with Minors: Information for Those Participating in University Programs Involving Minors

The University of Denver has a strong interest in how our society cares for children and the most vulnerable among us and wants to do what it can to prevent the victimization of child and adolescent minors and promote their safety.

To further this goal, this packet contains important information that individuals must review if they are participating in programs or activities involving minors that:

- 1) the University operates;
- 2) that others operate in University facilities; or
- 3) that DU students, faculty or staff are involved with in the community.

You are receiving this information because you have been identified as participating in a covered program or activity. You must review the information in this packet and return the attached certification indicating that you have read the packet and agree to comply with the requirements it describes. You must also determine whether you may be a mandated reporter and agree to comply with the obligations imposed by law and by the University on mandated reporters. You may also be required to review additional materials that are germane to your specific situation.

This informational packet contains the following:

- 1) Guidelines for working with minors that will help you to maintain safe and positive interactions and reduce the risk of mistaken allegations;
- 2) Steps to take if you suspect that a minor has been abused or neglected or is otherwise unsafe, including information about how to report your suspicions or ask questions;

Neglect occurs when parents or caretakers do not provide proper supervision, control, subsistence, education as required by law, or other care necessary for healthy development. By itself, lack of financial means to provide for a child is not neglect.

Physical signs may include:
